Great read with great info on the Pan American Highway ...By Jono SladeGreat read with great info on the Pan American Highway through Central America. This book was a big help when preparing for the trip. Some of the boarder crossing info is out of date but is still really helpful to know each step of the process. Also walks you through trip prep fairly well. Would definitely recommend if you are looking to venture down the Pan American Highway by car.0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Great book with lots of good practical detailBy RZGreat book with lots of good practical detail. It is not a guide book, and it doesn't attempt to be, but it could almost be used as one. The Kindle version is a little difficult since there are frequent hyperlinks and the Kindle has difficulty with them. I finally ended up going to my iPad. Lots of great information and helpful tips. The authors work remotely 2 days a week throughout the trip, so it is a bit heavy on WiFi info that I was not interested on, otherwise I highly recommend it.1 of 1 people found the following review helpful. About the AuthorLife Remotely is a resource for professionals who wish to break free from the perpetual rut of working for tomorrow. We have never felt entirely at peace with a stationary existence or daily routines. We've spent the last fifteen years in school, building careers, attempting to achieve financial stability and professional success. We saved, lived cheap and resorted to extreme measures to assure we could travel as much as possible. We slowly realized that the freedom to discover what the world has to offer is more important than furthering our professional or financial "success". After a decade of working endlessly for the next plane ticket, we decided to break the cycle. No longer would we leave our jobs at home, only to return home after a few weeks or months of travel to dream about the next trip. We became digital nomads, combining our love for travel and the need to continue working. We are here to chronicle our journey and provide information and resources for others who wish to do the same. Read more about our adventures at www.liferemotely.com
