coming at the rest stops before seeing those road-side signs was a great help. Easy to read, and follow along. When we decided to drive on a more scenic highway for part of our trip and didn't have your book to refer to, it was missed! 2 of 2 people found the following review helpful. We travel with a dog and need to know where all the rest stops are in advance and good places to stop for gas and pet friendly hBy customer, W.H.CtThis book is very helpful. We have been driving back and forth to Florida on 95 for the past ten years. When the new edition comes out I always purchase it. We travel with a dog and need to know where all the rest stops are in advance and good places to stop for gas and pet friendly hotels. Definitely would recommend it to anyone traveling interstate 95.0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Drive I-95 has a lot of useful information.By MikeWe purchased this book as we travel I-95 between New York and South Carolina several times a year.It's nice to have in the car when we are looking to make a stop for a quick bite or to fill up. You can get some of the same info from the signs on the highway but it's nice to have the time to look at our own pace.I would have given it five stars except for one flaw. When looking at the hotel info in the book it shows hotels which it indicates are pet friendly. This is important for us as we travel with our dogs. We usually make the trip in a single day with just stops for food and fuel (and to walk the dogs). A couple of times when we wanted to leave in the evening to avoid the traffic out of New York and stop part way down we looked for a hotel which would allow our dogs. We found quite a few of the hotels indicating pet friendly in this book were only accepting service dogs. Or they have size restrictions on the dogs they accept. We had an 80 lb Golden so was difficult to find a place to stay with her. I would like the guide to more clearly state which hotels are service dogs only and which take "regular" pets to make the search quicker. All in all a good book - just needs a little fine tuning.

Road trips are back again, because by traveling in the security of your own car and visiting friendly small town America, it brings back the way America used to be and the way we would like it to be again. To help those who travel up and down the East coast, Drive I-95 is a new style of guidebook. It combines colorful easy-to-follow pictorial maps and fun stories, eliminating the trepidation of a road trip down America's busiest highway. Travelers can look ahead exit-by-exit to see which motels and gas stations are coming up, where the radars trap are or where to stop for a good homemade meal. The drive from New Hampshire to Miami or any section in-between will become more pleasant and less stressful by knowing where to find: 24 hour gas stations (and which ones have a mechanic!) and pharmacies, 800 numbers for motel chains, camp grounds, golf courses, places that allow pets, shopping malls, supermarkets, internet availability and even which radio stations to tune to. This husband and wife team share stories of the road: history that happened on it, quirky museums worth a visit, Americana trivia, homey towns to explore, or places to run with the kids and pets. These can be read for entertainment during the drive and may entice motorists to stop, stretch their legs and discover someplace new. The maps and the fun stories of the road are useful for family travelers (Christmas, Spring break or summer), seniors, salesmen, truckers, campers and RVers, University students and their parents, military personnel and people who live and work near I-95. This 6th edition now covers ALL of I-95 from Maine to Miami.

I didn't think the authors could improve on their Drive I-95 guide, but this new edition is clearly superior. This intrepid couple has researched every exit between MA and FL. If there is a medal for this kind of work, I believe they've earned it 10 times over. --SPENCER RUMSEY, NewsdayThis book is a stroke of genius packed with amazing places to see along I-95. Makes getting there half the fun. --BILL HENLEY, The 10! Show, NBC-TV, PhiladelphiaHaving the travel guidebook called Drive I-95 in your automobile is like having a guardian angel along for the ride. --ROY BARNES, associatedcontent.comAbout the AuthorSandra Phillips-Posner's first book, Smart Shopping Montreal, quickly climbed onto the best seller list and remained there (with its annually updated editions) for the past 27 years. Having spent some calm years as an art teacher (with a Masters degree in Art and Education from Queens College/CUNY), Sandra's life took an interesting turn following this success. This native New Yorker was offered her own column, which ran for 15 years in Montreal's newspaper The Gazette. She has also become a regular on TV news and talk shows and talk radio and is a popular lecturer. Her shopping shlog at smartshoppingmontreal.com has already achieved more than half a million fan hits per month - in one city! Stan Posner is actually an actuary who fell in love with both Sandra and computers. He has owned a computer consulting business since 1984, and has done work with such companies as Raytheon, Honda, Bombardier and Atomic Energy of Canada. He has also spent many years teaching actuarial math at Concordia University, after having graduated in Honors Math from McGill University. Stan is the GPS and computer guru for their Travelsmart publishing company. He is always on the cutting edge, and has turned this book into a phone app. Next up is making it interactive online: see the interviews, podcasts and YouTube's at drivei95.com. Sandra and Stan's passion for learning and travel has taken them to 34 countries, 45 U.S. states and all 10 Canadian provinces. During and after their adventures, they report for travel radio, ezines and print media. They are anticipating turning the book into a fascinating travel TV show. This book is the perfect combination of Stan's love of maps and his computer expertise together with Sandra's delightful insightful blurbs. After 35 years of marriage, and even after spending 10 hours a day for 8 weeks in the car together doing the research for this book, they are still crazy about each other. They have a way of making travel both informative and fun.
