The Little Theater in NewarkBy Sue GossettWhen I read this book, I discovered that my father, Vincent LaMartine was featured under the Recreation section. He was one of the founders of the Little Theater in Newark. It was such a surprise to see his photo in the book as well as my uncle Denton Varley and his finance Ada Lawrence. Both my brother and I are pleased to see that my father was recognized for his brilliant work for the theater not only as a actor but also a director. Thank you so much!Sue Gossett (nee LaMartine)0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Great job on bookBy frank t mc andrewGreat job on book. Spent countless days in Soverel Park had everything a kid could want, all the ball sports plus ice skating, a toboggan run down the middle of the semi pro baseball grandstand.0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. History of East OrangeBy Gail PonderThis book gave me some great information about East Orange I didn't know yet it also brought back old memories. I shared the book with a friends and they want to buy it too.

East Orange captures the magnificence of a community thatwas one of New Jerseys leading cities for the better part of the 20th century. This history is richly illustrated with photographs that speak of the beauty and wealth of East Orange from the late 1800s to the early 1960s. Here are the streets and structures, founders and builders, and famous and ordinary citizens, all in period dress.

About the AuthorBill Hart spent his childhood years in East Orange. He is the author of two other Arcadia titles, including a postcard history of East Orange, and some two dozen historical articles on the city. Completing the story of his hometown in East Orange, Hart shares newly acquired information and some 200 unforgettable images from the East Orange Public Library and private collections.
