JoBesse McElveen Waldeck : Exploring the jungle, (New world neighbors) before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Exploring the jungle, (New world neighbors):

Excerpt from Exploring the JungleEver since I can remember, I have wanted to go exploring. Indian stories fascinated me. Reading about the Indians I learned to admire their loyalty, bravery, and skill in hunting and fishing. I always wanted to visit primitive Indians and live among them.My husband has been an explorer most of his life. He has shot lions in Africa; the skin of one of them is stretched on the floor of his room. The more my husband told me of his experiences, the more eager I was to go.So you can imagine how excited I was when my husband received a commission from a museum to collect Indian handicraft. From among the primi tive Indian tribes who live in the jungle of British Guiana, we were to collect pottery, beads, feather ornaments, bows and arrows, blowguns, and other articles of ornament and use.About the PublisherForgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books.
