Tim Jarvis : Mawson before purchasing it in order to gauge whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Mawson:

Offers an account of the author's attempt to retrace Sir Douglas Mawson's infamous polar journey of 1912-13. Battling isolation, and close to starvation, he aimed to complete the journey across the south pole in the forty-seven days that it took Mawson. He does it using the same equipment, clothing and food rations.

About the Author Tim Jarvis is an environmental scientist, explorer, film-maker and author of The Unforgiving Minute (2004). Mawson- Life and Death in Antarctica was broadcast on ABC TV (2008) and aired in 2007 on Channel Four in the UK as part of the highly acclaimed Edge of Endurance series.
