CamannWe played the games in this book on a two day trip to the mid-west and my kids enjoyed it. Our girls were ages 3, 5 and 6 at the time though, and most of these games and activities were too old for them. Think we'll get more use out of it as they get older. BTW, my husband came up with great car game at this time. One person impersonates a character from a book or movie and gives one clue at a time as to who they are. Whoever guesses who you are wins and gets to go next. For instance, my big, 6'1" husband said in a dainty, high pitched voice. "I love to eat apples." After everyone guessed, and got it wrong, he went on to the next clue. "I have an evil stepmother." More guesses, all wrong, so he moved on to another clue."My best friends are 7 little strange men." At that point our oldest two daughters shouted out, "Snow White!" It was hilarious! At one point I was our dog, "I like to eat out of the garbage can", and one of our daughters was Eve, "I like to dress-up in fig leaves." The funnier the clues the better.5 of 5 people found the following review helpful. Mom of 3By Mom of 3This is for any parent who doesn't want to plug their child into the DVD player for hours on end for a long car trip. I was VERY pleased with this book. It is a compact size that can fit in the console or glove compartment. In addition, there are lots of fun games and there is even an index of the games broken out by age group! What a great product!0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Three StarsBy karenit was fun for the adults but 7 yr old wasn't interested

Anyone who has ever been trapped in a hot car with bored kids is well aware that they need a sure-fire way of easing the resulting tensions. MILES OF SMILES: 101 GREAT CAR GAMES ACTIVITIES fills that need and, according to one enthusiastic user, "may be the ultimate solution for back seat squabbling." It contains games and activities with travel-related themes. 97 games require just minds and mouths to play, and the other 4 need only simple props: a penny, a pencil, and some crayons. Recommended for ages 4+.
