Passport City Guides Presents: Mini 3 day Unforgettable Vacation Itinerary to London, England:

London England is a city rich with cultural heritage it was the seat of the British Empire, which in its heyday, controlled one quarter of the world's land mass, and it was said that "the sun will never set on the British Empire!" London, England has a rich and vibrant culture that has been going strong and steadily growing. For almost 1000 years. Recently London has undergone something of an urban renaissance, as people from all over Europe and the world flock to London to seek their fortune. The city has done a magnificent job of accepting everything wonderful about modern life things such as technology and architecture, and everything in between, while still maintaining. It's very British sensibilities and old world charm. London is steeped in culture and magnificent architecture, churches and public buildings such as Westminster Abbey and the House of Commons have stood on their respective locations for thousands of years and they are testament to this great culture. London is filled with excellent architecture and phenomenal museums such as the British Museum of antiquities and the Tower of London. Standing guard over the River Thames to Tower of London once doubled as a royal residence and national prison, and it is still one of the oldest recognized military installations in the Western world. If however, visiting museums and viewing historic architecture is simply not your scene. There are plenty of other things to do. London is world-renowned for its shopping opportunities and contains some of the oldest department stores and shopping centers in the world, where you are sure to find that most unique and interesting treasure that you simply cannot live without. London also has an extremely vibrant nightlife with a wide variety of nightclubs that are sure to suit everyone's tastes. Not to mention the most British of institutions. The pub (short for public house) this type of culture is similar to the coffee house culture found in places like Paris and Seattle. The pub is treated by locals, like a neighborhood living room the pub culture came about due to the side constraint of living quarters within the city apartments (or flats as they are known in England) within the city were rather small and not ideal spaces for social gatherings, so by extension the pub became the natural gathering place for a community. The pub is also the place where you're likely to find a wide selection of traditional English gastronomic adventures. Everything from fish and chips to chicken tiki masala and everything in between, historically speaking the English have not been known for their cooking skills. However in recent generations this has changed drastically and English chefs are now producing some of the best food in the world. So, if for your next adventure you are looking for a place with old world charm, mixed with the most modern cutting-edge society then why not give London England to try and be sure and take a long a Ms. Passport three day unforgettable mini vacation itinerary. The Ms. Passport travel guides are designed to provide travelers with the perfect itinerary for a three-day unforgettable vacation. The itineraries in these handy little guide books are designed to run Friday through Sunday, and each day of the itinerary had a specific attraction event or adventure listed for the traveler along with that. Are the suggested restaurants and bars or pubs that are close to a given activity, this is to make finding food.
