It is double sided which is rather annoying. If you're using it for the Old Mojave Road, buy another map. You have to flip back and forth on this one to figure out where the road goes, and it is not marked very well. If you're using this map for other areas of the preserve, I'm sure it's great for that. If you want to do the 140 long Mojave Trail, buy the Mojave National Preserve map by Tom Harrison. 0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. My only concern was validated By C.B. Stone I had a previous version of this map that I have used for years and years. The Trails Illustrated maps have been companions to me for at least a decade. But there's the problem: my existing map is just fine. It's not torn, there are no coffee stains, and it's in great condition. They build these things to last. So my concern was: is there any point to upgrade to a more recent map release? The answer is yes. The detail and information on this map are well worth the investment. The material is even more robust (plastic infused paper or something) than my existing version. Or maybe it just hasn't been out in the sun enough yet. 1 of 1 people found the following review helpful. Great map By R Chandler I love the National Geographic Topo maps. We have several for our different hiking areas. They are heavy duty, waterproof tear resistance. Besides being a map of the terrain, it gives you some points of interest information about the area. A great companion to Hiking the Mojave Desert by Michel Dogonnet.
