Andrew Dier : Moon Spotlight Bogot before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Moon Spotlight Bogot:

2 of 2 people found the following review helpful. handy guide to take alongBy jcethis is handy little guide for "take along" purposes, but there's not a lot here that you can't get online. i would have appreciated more insider-type tips, given the author's personal background. i purchased the book for it's 130+ pages on bogota; about 1/2 the book is dedicated to day trips and ideas for things to do outside the city.0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. UnimpressedBy Lauren Rose InfusinoThis has the exact same information as the Moon "Colombia" book does on Bogot. It does not go into any more detail, which I was hoping when I bought it. It isn't bad, but it isn't the most thorough. I would have liked more up-to-date information, more maps, a better description of the public transportation system in Bogot (and maps), and more recommended dining options for various budgets.0 of 0 people found the

About the Author Andrew Dier and his Colombian partner Vio arrived in Bogot from New York City in 2002. It was initially supposed to be a temporary move--a change of scenery for a while--but 10 years and a couple of adopted street dogs later, bustling Bogot has gradually become their home. Excited to share his newfound insider perspective on Colombia with others, Andrew traveled the country corner to corner to research Moon Colombia. Colombia has experienced great change during the past decade, transforming itself from a no-go to a must-see destination. Andrew is continuously astounded by the natural beauty of the country and touched by the genuine warmth of its people.
