America:

Almost 10 years after being widowed, a Canadian woman meets a macho guide who takes her around Latin America on the back of his motorcycle. Every day on the road, there is adventure and not just in the changing landscape. Coming from very different backgrounds, Javier and Geneva struggle to understand one another's philosophy with varying degrees of success. Sex helps to bring them closer, but as the long journey's final destination approaches, a fairy-tale ending seems elusive.

About the AuthorThe author's childhood was spent in the mountains of upstate New York where she often enjoyed chasing monarch butterflies. Eventually she obtained a Ph.D. in cell biology from McGill University in Montreal. A marriage and move to Calgary soon followed, but in the year 2000 she was widowed with two teen-aged boys. Life continued and now she sometimes travels to faraway places, but always returns to spend the summer at a cabin overlooking Lake Windermere, BC.
